Hastily opening a door which she supposed led to the hallway, a sight met her vision which transfixed her at the threshold. At that moment, she saw the Dignified Manager, in the Guise of a Jolly, Doating Father on "all-fours", with a small son upon his back, while his wife with whom he had been to luncheon, looked on, Amused.

This tableau had the effect of Instantaneously lessening the Distance between him and Bashful Katherine. At this Situation, she Gathered Courage while he scrambled to his feet looking Foolish and Apologotic, at the same time muttering an explanation, which Katherine as she bowed herself out of the room, met with an Apology for her Interruption of the family scene. It was the One Natural touch which immediately placed the manager and girl upon a Different footing. To her, he was no longer the Great Personage to whom she Feared to speak,—he was a real man like other men.

When the Diffident girl called again the following morning, and was ushered into the Big manager's presence, it was with a More Confident bearing and Resolute courage that she made known her errand, and enumerated her reasons for thinking she could Fill the position she asked for,-and for which she was subsequently engaged.

TIP :- The relative Distance between people of Eminence and those of Lesser position, is Not so Great as the latter Imagines it to be.

Little Bob Westford Jr. who has the distinction of being one of Lillian Russell's two nephews, is noted among his relatives as being extremely sensitive to public reproof. If, after the manner of youngsters of his age, he gets into mischief, and happens to need a gentle verbal reprimand,-as for instance, "Bobby, you're a very naughty boy,"-which may not be delayed till after guests have departed, the pink glow of mortification which overspreads his little face, is the only evidence that the reproof has hurt him; as for his demeanor at the moment, it is one of boyish bravado as if he didn't care how often he is corrected. A few minutes later, however, Bobby may be seen quietly getting out of the room under cover of general conversation, and remaining until he thinks the episode forgotten, when, after recovering from the pain of public reproof, he will venture back as if nothing had happened.

Bobby spent last Summer at his aunt's country home, where he carefully looked after the welfare of a brood of chickens that had been given him for his very own. He gave them so much of his personal attention, they soon became very tame following him about, and feeding from his hand.

Bobby was proud of the fact that he was the only one that the young fowls permitted ful good little boy in my class, and-and he to come within touching distance. He considered himself as a sort of little lord over the brood, which feeling, naturally communicated a certain dignity to his bearing, among

One day, the little chap had a disobedient streak on, and, quite out of patience, his mother (Susanne Westford, on theatrical programs) exclaimed:

Bobby, I told you not to take those chickens out of the barnyard,-now if you disobey me again to day, I shall certainly spank you.

Unfortunately for Bobby, he again overstepped the bounds of obedience, and Mrs. Westford went out among the bushes where her young son had conducted his brood of barnyard subjects, and was about to inflict corporal punishment. At this, Bobby's face expressed an agony of shame and mortification. He looked with dismay towards his chickens which, at the approach of Bobby's mother, had huddled bunch at the apprehensively. Then as if he could no longer bear the thought that he was about to be disgraced before the very eyes of his brood, he begged in suppliant tones, while tears of shame rolled down his pale little cheek:

"O, mamma-mamma, ple-e-ease wait till we get inside the house—you ain't going to spank me before all these chickens, are you!" To spare Bobby's dignity, "mamma" deferred the punishment until they should reach the privacy of his room. This young scion of the house of Westhundred per cent, on each of three invest-

One of the added pleasures of his visit at home, is when the youthful Westford hands 'papa" his reward of merit card, receiving a nickle in return,

Last week, being the end of his stay in town, Bobby tried to be "real good" so as to get cards every day,-incidentally, nickels -but failed on three occasions, as before Now, Bobby hated to dispel his fond father's illusion concerning his good behavior, besides he did not care to lose his daily monetary reward, so he made a satisfactory arrangement whereby he became pos sessed of the coveted pasteboards so that neither his father nor himself should be disappointed. At the end of the week, Westford Sr. approvingly patted Westford Jr. on . 4 the head, saying:

"I guess I'll have to give you something extra this week, old chapple, you've been a pretty good boy, havn't you now?"

At this undeserved praise, Bobby blushed uneasily, and seemed a trifle disconcerted, finally faltering:

"Well, papa,-pretty good-but-but not awful good."

'Why, how is that? you've brought your tards home to me every day."

"Well, you see, papa," stammered conscience-stricken Bobby, "ther—there's an awgets a card every single day—he—he's co used to 'em that he don't care for 'em any more, and he don't need 'em-least, not so much as I do, for he don't get nickels for his, so-so I just asked him last Wednesday, day I didn't get mine, if he'd let me have his for a cent, and, papa dear, he seemed real glad of the cent."

This faltering tale explained the little fellow's blushes at once, and his father putting on a severe expression, asked: "And how many times, my son, did this happen?" "Only twice besides, papa—and—and Johnny was so glad of the money, papa," said Bobby. "And papa dear," he con-tinued reassuringly, "I made twelve cents on admonishing the boy that his methods had been somewhat questionable, proceeded to give him a lesson in arithmetic, to prove that he had lost three cents on the week, 32 28 instead of making trails. lt," whereupon the elder Westford, after instead of making twelve, as Bobby insisted

One of the party, reaching into his change pocket, found that he had but a nickel and a dime. Is well known as an eccentric Irish comedian. The accompanying picture represents him in the role of Tim Hogan. In the three act farce comedy, "My Friend Hogan," which is to be presented by him. The role gives Mr. Mullen ample opportunity to display his talent, and success may be safely predicted for his enterprise.

In the match of thirty games between M. C. Priest and Geo. Kearns, at Philadelphia, Pa. the latter gentleman won by the score of: Kearns, won 5. Priest, won 1. The remainder drawn. This rather jars the talent, as, while Mr. Kearns was always considered a strong player, Mr. Priest was at one time champion of America and always thought to be several rods ahead of his opponent. It's a case of deterioration on one side, and progress on the other. Will Mr. Kearns try Mr. Pomeroy now?..... The English tournament no doubt is finished by this time. A. Hynd, W. Gardner, A. Jordan, J. Hynd Jr., J. A. Kear, Sr. and Jr., and lesser lights in English draughts circles have entered. Some prominent names are missing.... Dr. Schaefer says that Hugh McKean, the well known expert player and analyist, of Greenock, Scotland, is expected in New York early in June, and will spend a few days here before proceeding West.... The Chicago experts. J. T. Denvir, Berry Mittchell and K. P. Q T was a mistake,' and asked a correction accordingly. Query—In strictness of law, should not the move, as sent and received, stand?"

Certainly it should. That the move was so bad as to lose the game on the spot was matter for regret, but not for change. The question is the counterpart of "touch and move" over the board, with the added increment that the piece was not only "touched," but actually moved to a designated square and quitted. That Black, after some discussion, allowed the unquestioned mistake to be rectified, and that at the direct loss of the game, is to be credited only to their amiable generosity and desire to avoid a controversy.

CLAYTON E. WHITE,

Who, with Marie Stuart and Pauline Taylor, is presenting his own comedy sketch, "Dickie," in vaudeville, was born at Castile, N. Y., in 1863. He began his professional career when in his teens, and by earnest endeavor he worked his way to the front, and has finally become a comedian of recognized ability. His first important engagement was as one of the stars in "A Booming Town," He next appeared in "The Nancy Hanks," in which he made his New York debut at the Garden Theatre, in January, 1897. Smythe & Rice next engaged him for "The Old Coat," in which he created the role of Theodore Brown. He continued under the management of Smythe & Rice during the next season, being featured with Max Figman, in "A Misfit Marriage." Hoyt & McKee next secured his services for the role of I. Collier Down, in "A Stranger in New York." At the termination of that engagement he went into vaudeville, appearing, with Gertrude Mansfield, for two weeks at F. F. Proctor's theatres, in New York, presenting "The Waldorf-Metropole Episode." After a short senson in this field he was engaged by Charles Frohman to play the role of Thomas Penfield, in "The Cuckoo," in which he met with success. He next appeared in "The Surprises of Love," in which he played the role of Mayor Platinel. At the close of this engagement he returned to vaudeville. "The Waldorf-Metropole Episode" was resurrected, and, with Marle Stuart as his associate, Mr. White opened at the Orpheum, San Francisco, in June, 1900. Later the sketch was renamed "Dickie," and in this he is still appearing with success.

— Fletcher Smith has signed for the Summer with Andrew Downie McPhee's big "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co., and is at present at Medina, N. Y. While at work lettering a mammoth sign he had the misfortune to fall twenty feet, and dislocated his left shoulder. He will be confined to his bed for about two weeks.

Was born at Adelaide, Australia, in 1875. His parents took him to England when he was two years of age, and he began performing in 1879 with his brothers, and continued with them until 1889. He then began practicing his spiral act on one wheel, and after much practice first performed it on Easter Monday, 1889. At Birmingham, Eng., in July, while in practice, he fell forty-eight feet and was unconscious for half an hour. This occurred during his Saturday performance, and on Monday he performed again. His second fall occurred a few months later (also while practicing), at Edinburgh, Scot. This time he fell only thirty feet, but he was seriously injured and remained unconscious for five days, and suffered with concussion of the brain. In September, 1830, Minting went to the Aquarium, London, for a one week's stay, and remained for forty-five consecutive weeks. He then went to the Folies Bergere, Paris, for one month, and remained for fourteen. This was followed by an eleven weeks' engagement at St. Petersburg, Russia. He has since played in every important city in England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, France, Belgium, Holland, Norway, Denmark, Germany and Russia. Last Summer he was a feature with the Forepaugh-Selis Brothers' Circus, and at the close of the tenting season he went to London, opening Dec. 20 at Agricultural Hall. He remained there until Feb. 8. He is this season again with the Forepaugh-Selis Brothers' Circus. At the close of the season he will return to London, for an eight weeks' stay at Agricultural Hall.

Haday Lessik (Kissell), under date of April 1, from Liverpool, writes: "The dwil, drab, dreary, wet Winter of England is now at an end, and the Spring, followed by the most beautiful Summer in the world, is near at hand. A performer deserves a good Summer and a good salary for worrying through one of these English Winters. I, with many others, have had a moderately successful Winter season, dating from Jan. 1, 1902, but commencing July 7 next, at Folkestone, on the South coast, I have seven solid months signed, representing a modest fortune. I honestly believe that a performer could put more money aside in America playing for similar salaries."

INEXE LA Tour writes from Central Theatre, Dresden, Germany, under date of March 77: "We are spending Good Friday here in Dresden—the American city of the Fatherland—and a vory solemn day it is. The theatres are closed for the day, and will also be closed tomorrow; in fact, every kind of business is suspended, so we have passed the day sightseeing on the beautifut river Eibe. Dresden is one of the beauty spots of Germany and is well called the Florence of the North. It is picturesauely situated on both banks of the river, and is the residence of the King of Saxony. The picture gallery, containing over 2.500 paintings, is world famous, and there are so many other places and objects of interest in and cround the city that we shall not be able to see nearly half of them during our month's stay, which is now drawing to a close. There are two variety theatres of the first class in the city, and, as is usual in every German town, the competition between them is very keen. After my engagement here I go to the Hausa Theatre, Hamburg, for the month of April, thence to the Folles Bergere, Paris, for May, after which I intend to return to America, and expect to be able to take off my hat to the Berthold statue some time during the second week in June."

NEW YORK CITY.

Review and Comment. For the most part good business ruled at the various houses during the past week. The weather. while not pleasant, kept cool, a condition well calculated to whet the desire of the regular theatregoer to indulge himself, and popular attractions did the rest. There was popular attractions did the rest. There was a healthy activity in theatrical circles, including the rumor of the proposed building of another theatre and the permanent closing of one which had been for many years an amusement resort. The proposed site of the new house is at the cerner of Sixty-fifth Street and Broadway. From abroad came the cheering news that yaudeylie has taken a sudden boom in continental Europe, and this was complet with the statement of Variance. a sudden boom in continental Europe, and this was coupled with the statement of Verel Lapierre, the representative of a Freach amusement syndicate, who receatly arrived here, that Europe now bows to the American vandeviller. M. Lapierre has had considerable experience as manager of the Folles Marigny and Olympia, in Paris, and therefore should know whereof he speaks. Among other things he said: "Noveities are wanted badly on the continent and the one place in hadly on the continent, and the one place in the world to get them is here in the United States. During my stay here I will probably book a great number of acts, but who they will be, or for what dates, I cannot state as yet. Heretofore Europe has had almost exclusively dumb acts from the United States, but there are many talking and sing ing acts here that would make big hits on the continent, and it is to get them that I am here. Next season will see one of the biggest vaudeville fights Europe has ever be The Isola Brothers are trying to get absolute control of all the vaudeville house on the continent, and it is to meet their move that a syndicate of small managers, which I represent, has been formed. Most of my time here will be spent in this city, though I will visit the West and the South. When I leave here I hope to have contracts for the best acts in the field, and if our rivals send agents over there will be little left here for them." This is undoubtedly good news to the vaudeville performer. It promises lively competition for his services nd is sure to mare to his benefit. But how about the American manager? It is only short time since that a leading Australian manager visited the United States and car ried away with him hundreds of contracts calling for the services of many of our best vaudeville acts, and now comes a French manager on the same errand, with a strong probability of some enterprising German amusement caterer following in his wake. The Yankee manager has always been noted for his astuteness, but his foreign contemporary is proving that he, too, has enterprise. Eq. pe is aircady being entertained by many native American performers, and indications point toward their number being greatly in creased within the next twelve months Whether or not our home market will be de pleted of its best wares will depend upon the home managers..... Notes.—Ringling Brothers' Circus is unon is second week at the Coliseum. The show is better than ever better in its history, and ail list week drew large crowdalt will remain until April 26, and will then go under canvas. A tribute will be paid to Jack Haverly, the deceased minstrel manager, by a benefit for his widow and daughter, at the Illinois or McVickers, the second week in May. Plans for the erection of a new theatre in Randolph Street next year have taken another step. Lowell, Lyman & Harris have purchased the property at 79 and 81 Randolph Street for $150,000. The tract will be leased to the theatrical syndicate, of which Harry J. Powers and Will. Davis are the local representatives, and a $400,000 theatre, to be known as the Iroquols, will be erected. Leases on the property do not expire until May 1, 1903, so construction of the new pay souse wat not begin until then. The lease on the Deurborn Theatre expires Sept. 1, 1903, and it is understood that the Dearborn Theatre Company was overbid when the question of renewing the lease caffic up. Mxon & Zimmerman were understood to have been the theatrical managers who had secured a ten years' lease on the house, but this is now denied. Hearry Raeder, of the Dearborn, asys that his company is now locking around for a site for a new theatre, to be built and ready for occupancy when the present lease runs out. The Dearborn project is said to involve the expenditure of close to a million dollars. Harry J. Powers has secured a tenyty-five years' extension of the lease on the Powers Theatre property for the same rental that he has been paying—$17.000 a year. Notes - Ringling Brothers' Circus is upon

CARDS.

L. B. C. AND T. W. E., Giasgow. —As the principal point in dispute involves merely a question of veracity between the parties concerned, we cannot undertake to decide your query.

A. & B., Lancaster.—B wins. The house rule under which the game was played did not enter into it, because A, although he took all of the remaining tricks, including the last, lacked three points of enough to win the game, and B in his count had three more than enough.

G. P., Kalamazoo.—A is right. In euchre, if the dealer deals the cards when the pack has not been properly cut, any one of the other players may, prior to the trump card being turned up, claim a misdeal, and the deal basses to the next player.

J. W. N., Auburn.—F can certainly give the beggar one point when it is his deal. If the one point puts the beggar out. B of course, loses the game, because the point is scored immediately. It is therefore difficult to understand how any player can give his opponent a point at that siage of the game.

V. S., New York.—C is right. It would cost D twenty cents to come in. The stradding of a blind merely doubles the amount which the blind calls for. B's five cent blind calls for 10 cents, and C's straddle doubles it, making it twenty cents in all.

BASEBALL.

notice is that just published, which reads as follows: "Sanderson Moffat-McVean.—Dec. 10th, 1894, at Glasgow, James Sanderson Moffat, actor, to Jeanie McVean, of Glasgow."

Mr. and Mrs. Charies H. Arnold have celebrated their silver wedding and have been the recipients of many warm congratulations upon their five-and-twenty years of married life.

The recent reports of the wedding of John Coleman and Edith Jordan were the work of some practical joker with a very poor sense of humor indeed. Mr. Coleman was greatly annoyed that so young a lady should have been the victim of this silly and vulgar jest, and the matter was renderd more offensive by locating the scene of the bupposed wedding in the London-Synagogue, Mr. Coleman being a strict Roman Catholic.

Considerable stir has been occusioned by the troubles in the managerial household of the Alhambra, and the quarrels among the directors have been popular with all parties and to have been worthy of the hearty vote of thanks which was voted to him at the stormy meeting at which the directors and the shareholders discussed the outlook for the huge hall in Leicester Square. It was clearly proven that there had been great extravagance in several branches of the business, as for instance the expenditure of £30.060 to secure the entrance from the Charing Cross Road side of the hall, and the purchase of cigars for the refreshment department at the rate of £2,000 worth at a time. The entrance to the hall from the Charing Cross Road was, I understood at the time, a move designed to attract persons who might object to miggle, even for a moment, with such of the patronesses of the establishment as used the main doorway, and spent the evenings in the propagades of the hall. As these ladies are, as a rule, unchaperoned (being quite able to look out for the mselves) it was thought desirable that other ladies who preferred to sit in the stalls, and not walk about or reach the seats in the balcony by passing among the promenaders, could do so without danger of contamination. Th

Yvette Guilbert and one of the Barrison Sisters.

Mabel Love has done so nicely as the heroine of "Sweet and Twenty," on tour, that she has been re-engaged for the lead in the Murray King and Clark Company, which does the "suburban and No. 1 theatres," and which will be sent out in the Autumn. Albert Rogers will play the part of Ezra Baroni, and assist in the stage management of the Mark Blow "Under Two Flags" Co., on tour, having concluded his engagement with C. H. Arnold's "Prodigal Daughter" tour.

Two new girl babies and two new boy on tour, having concluded his engagement with C. H. Arnoid's "Prodigal Daughter" tour.

Two new girl babies and two new boy babies have come to town. The former have arrived at the households of Mr. and Mrs. F. Dudman Bromwich (Kate Neville), and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Masters, while the boys are at the residences of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McLean and Mr. and Mrs. Rule Pyot (Helen Ingelow).

The Hyman enterprise at Johannesburg. The Hyman enterprise at Johannesburg. South Africa, the Empire Palace, on which a good deal of money has been spent in the way of alterations, will probably be opened during the first week in August.

The divorce mills of the English courts have been pretty busy of late, and a considerable number of cases are connected with the theatrical profession. The most recent of note is the freeing of Lord Francis Hope from his matrimonial bonds with May Yohe. Another titled divorce case was that of the Earl of Rosslyn against his wiie, the husband being known on the stage as Mr. Frskine. He sued for divorce on the ground of his wife's desertion and absolute refusal to live with him, and the decree was granted in the courts in Scotland. Lady Rosslyn did not take the trouble to even reply to the charge.

In the case of Mrs. Florence Kate Lo Ben, the foolish young woman who married the Matsbelle black man who was one of the very numerous sons of the once famous varior chief of Matabeleland, Lobengula, while the "princes" was connected with "The Savage South Africa" show at Earl's Court some years ago, the covrt's decree was against her application, for the present at least. The testimony was to the effect that the dusky bridegroom had knocked his bride about very freely soon after the wedding, and had bitten her ingers and generally let his Matabele blood course through his velns at its nitive gailt. He is at present travelling with a cheap circus in the provinces, and the "princess" has not seen him for six months. The judge, in refusing a decree, said that an English woman who married a savage might expect musical stage as Annie Purcell; Mrs. Plorence Eilzabeth Millicent Wallen, known on the music hall stage as Millie Lindon, against her husband. Thomas Ed. Wallen, known professionally as T. E. Dunville; Mrs. Katherine Hardman-Lucas—both used the professional name of Alleyne; Mrs. Magdalene Frances Mary Ball against her husband, M. D. Ball, an actor, known professionally as Bryan; Mrs. Florence Isabel Hook, known professionally as Florence Hamer, against her husband. Alexander Hook, manager of the Grand Theatre, Southampton.

The recent professional obituary list includes the following names: T. W. Terry, a brother of Ellen and Kate Terry, and a business man in India; J. H. Grant, a popular comedian of the Linnington-Beckett Dramatic Co.; his death was very sudden. Henry Brown, Shakespearean jester and author, aged eighty-seven. Mr. Brown was a circus veteran of much renown in England, and was one of the first of the Shakespearean clowns in circus life. He was also the originator of a great many of the merry jests that are still on duty in English circus rings in the provinces. He died at his residence at Brighton. Rosle Loftus Leyton (Mrs. A. G. Spry and a sister of Kitty Loftus, Olive Loftus-Leyton and Mabel Luxmore, aged twenty-seven. She was well known in pantomime, and had had considerable experience on the light comedy stage as well. Also quite a little in traveling companies giving Shakespeare. The burial took place at Eastbourne. Amelia D. Burg, aged forty-five, well known in the provinces as a premier dancer and ballet misress, she having filled a good part in the recent pantomime at the Grand Theatre, Nottingham. She died suddenly in London of a hemorrhage of the lungs. Signor Marie Henri Pontet Picco lomini, the musical composer. He had been confined for two years past in the Hanwell Lunatic Asylum. He was an Italian who had lived a long time in this country, but, sa he began by dwelling in Ireland, he always spoke English with a decided broque. He composed some four hundred songs, but was in the habit nt the Oxford during his very long period of management of the hall to Albert Gilmur.

The neglected state of the grave of the inte Charles Godfrey, the music hall singer, Laving been called attention to in the professional press some months ago, a subscription was soon taken up among his friends, and a neat stone now marks his last resting place in the Quarry Bank Cemetery, Brieri Hill, near Birmingham. On it are the words: "This stone was placed here by the friends of Paul Lacey, professionally known as Charles Godfrey, who died March 28, 1900, aged forty-five years."

The new play which Mr. Wyndham is preparing for Wyndham's Thertre will not be called "The Diplomat," as was at first announced, but "The End of the Story." It is not true that it is "identical with a piece-called "The Diplomat," as was at shas been published in a number of London papers. In addition to Mr. Wyndham and Mary Moore, the cast will include Mrs. Bernard Beere, who has been an absentee from the London stage for some time; Alfred Bishop, J. E. Matthews and Joan Burnett.

The production at the Savoy this evening of the new comic opera, "Merrie England," is to be followed 5 by another first night; which will also show Captain Basil Hood as an author. Thus he will be responsible for two new West End productions within a few days, and I note the fact because he did the same thing less than a year ago, when "The Emerald isle" was produced at the Savoy a few days after "Sweet and Twenty" first saw the light at the Vaudeville across the way. In the present instance the second piece will also be produced within a few yards of the Savoy as It will be the new comedy, "My Pretty Mad," which Edward Terry stages at his own little house in the Strand. It is in four acts, all of which, except one, take place in the sitting room of a country school, and the other in the garden. It is to be preceded by Mrs. Oscar Beringer's version of Dickens' Holly Tree Inn'

There have been a few trilling changes in the cast of "Are You a Mason?" which, after a run which began early in last September at the Shaftesbury, was transferred on March 31 to the Royalty. Daisy Thimm is now the Lulu of the plece, while the parts hitherto played by Mark Kinghorne and W. H. Day are now in the hands of Mr. Cheeseman and Charles Weir, respectively.

A revised version of "The Toreador" will be introduced at the Galety 3, it being a clever and profitable move on the part of George Edwardes to now and then brighten up even his most secure good things with fresh sougs and fresh bits of business in the place of those as have not proven as popular as others.

Miss Fortescue is about to produce on tour at Brixton a new plece which will be called "Little Mother," and which is the work of a pair of young men "who for the moment prefer to guard their anonymity." It is also announced that the plece deals with middle class life, and that the cast does not include a single duchess.

The variety profession has been interested in the law suit brought with success by Charles H. Jones and Harold L. Hilliard against John Mackay and James Gunn (Mackay and Gunn), to secure an injunction to prevent the latter pair from showing their skill as trick bleyclists, and riders on the sort of inclined plane tracks which the former pair had invented, and on which they had taught Mackay and Gunn to ride. The testimony was to the effect that Jones and Hilliard had at first invented a track with an incline of about 45 degrees which was intended for circus ring exhibitions. and that later they had another constructed for use on the music hall stage, the slope of which was 60 degrees. They had taught Mackay and Gunn bow to ride on the music hall stag Pavillon, and was at once a great attraction, Mr. Hilliard testifying that the manager had told him that the turn was worth 1300 a week extra to the house. The contract which had been made with Mackay and Gunn was that each should be paid £2 10s. a week. and that they were not to perform the act for any one else until after the first of January. 1903. The riders soon asked for an increase of pay, which was refused, and they then left and started a similar exhibition on their own account. The plaintiffs claimed that this naturally rendered their tracks a less valuable property, and they asked not only an injunction, but for heavy damages as well. The defendents claimed that they left the employ of Jones & Hilliard because the latter failed to increase their pay, as they had promised, and also that the track they were now riding on was built on a different principle from the Jones-Hilliard tracks, and was at a steeper angle and far more sensational and dangerous. Several witnesses were called to prove that the tracks were different, and one of them caused laughter by telling Lord Coleridge, one of the plaintiff's lawyers, that the two tracks were "quite distinct and similar." The judge said that the heavy damages claimed were out of proportion to the loss suffered, and he gave judgment for £100 and granted the injunction. The salary paid Mackay and Gunn was certainly too low after the success of the act was assured. Delmore and Lee, the American "Novelty dymasts," are concluding their second engagement of eight weeks at the Alhambra, and are under re-engagement at that house. They will tour the provinces until September, and then sail for home, returning here in 1903.

They will tour the provinces until September, and then sail for home, returning here in 1903.

Everhart will be at the Apollo Theatre, Nurnberg, Germany, during the month of April. He advertises that his cable address is Ohlo, "the place with a hoop at each end."

Easter week is always one of many important music hall engagements in both London and the provinces, and it is one of the few dates when your correspondent reports fully all the leading programmes in town, and at the principal country halls. A lack of space has prevented my inserting his interesting list this week, but it will figure conspicuously in the letter which follows.

Pat Rafferty was given a genuine surprise at the London on St. Patrick's Day. At the end of his turn a stalwart non-commissioned officer of the Irish Guards (the new regiment of foot in the Household Brigade) stepped on the stage and presented him with a special medal, on which was inscribed: "To Mr. Pat Rafferty, from the Irish Guards, St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1902." It was some moments before Pat found his tongue, and he then promised never to disgrace the medal. The audience was greatly tickled by the incident, and gave the guards and Pat hearty cheers.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston.—Business last week averaged good. The returns of the first class combination houses were varied, but on the whole very good: the vaudeville and burlesque houses drew excellent crowds. The weather was very unfavorable and tended to lessen the transient patronage. The current attractions are noteworthy, and include two novelties: Annie Russell, in "The Girl and the Judge," at the Hollis, and "Are You a Mason?" at the Museum. Other changes of almost equal importance are: Kellar, at the Boston: "The County Fair," at the Park, and Mrs. Fiske, in "Divorcons" and "Little Italy," at the Tremont.

Hollis Street Theather (Isaac B. Rich, manager).—Annie Russell begins a fortnight's engagement at this house this week, appearing for the first time in this city in "The Girl and the Judge." Coming so well heralded, the financial success of the engagement is a surety. E. H. Sothern, in "It Were King," closed April 12 a three weeks stay, which was a great success in everyway. Mr. Sothern played to crowded houses at nearly every performance. Minnie Tittell-Brume Joined the company 12, as leading lady, and will finish the season. Anna Held, in "The Little Duchess," is announced for 28.

Boston Museum (Field, Rich, Harris & Chas, Frohman, managers).—"Are You a ing lady, and will finish the season. Anna Held, in "The Little Duchess," is announced for 28.

Boston Muskem (Field, Rich, Harris & Chas. Frohman, managers).—"Are-You a Mason?" which has met with such success in other large cities, is on for a run at this house. In the company are many local favorities, namely: John Rice. Thomas Wise, Chas. Edwards, George Richards, Esther futtell, and Saily Cohen. W. D. Andreas, business manager of the house, is the beneficiary of the opening performance. Ethel Rarrymore closed her "Captain Jinks" engagement 12. This young star was most cordially received in her stellar debut, and the patronage throughout the engagement was uniformly good.

Boston Theatre (Lawrence McCarty, manager).—Kellar is mystifying the patrons of this house during the current week. Mrs. Patrick Campbell's short stay of one week was altogether too brief, judging from the capacity houses which witnessed her excellent performances. "The Notorious Mrs. Ebbsmith" drew out the largest houses. "Beyond Human Power" was the novelty of her repertory. Next week, Primrose & Dockstader's Minstreis.

Park Theatre (J. A. Crabtree, manager).—After an absence of nearly ten years, Bostonlans are given a chance to renew acquaintances with Nell Burgess, in "The County Fair." For this engagement Mr. Burgess has surrounded himself with a strong company, among whom are: Emma Pollock, Sherman Rowles, Harry S. Robinson, Charlotte Eveleth and the Transatlantic Four. "The Cap of Fortune" closed its Burgess has surrounded himself with a strong company, among whom are: Emma Pollock, Sherman Rowles, Harry S. Robinson, Charlotte Eveleth and the Transatlantic Four. "The Cap of Fortune" closed its three weeks' sojourn 12. Increased business ruided last week, and it is to be regretted that this musical comedy should go away when it was beginning to "catch on." TREMONT THEATHE (J. B. Schoeffel, manager).—Mrs. Fiske is now in the third and last week of her engagement at this house. "Divorcons" and "Little Italy" are the offerings, and a special matinee is offered for 16. Frederic de Belleville joined the company this week, to play the leading male roles. "Miranda" and "A Doll's flouse" drew fairly good houses last week, the latter play being the strongest drawing card. Weber & Fields, with their stock company, follow current attraction.

COLUMBIA THEATHE (A. H. Chamberlyn, manager).—"The Girl from Parls" was revived at this house 9. Considering the short time it was rehearsed the production was a most praiseworthy one, and reflects great credit on the principals, Sam Sidman, Alexander Clark, Gilbert Clayton, Mamle Gilroy, Maude Williams and Clara Levine. Scenery and costumes are new, and the chorus girls nee of the type for which this house is noted. Houses have been large, and the piece will probably run for a month.

COLONIAL THEATHE (Rich, Harris & Chas Frohman, managers).—"Ben Hur" entered the current week upon the fifth of its engagement. Patronage continues light, and the cad of the run canot come any too soon for the management. Unless an attraction is found to follow current play this house will have a very early closing.

Grand Oppera House (Geo, W. Magee, manager).—"McFadden's Row of Flata" is the attraction at this house for week of 14. Specialities are introduced by the following. Hilly Barry, Katle Rooney, Harry Crandall, John McVeigh, Jennie Lamont, Kieln, Ott Bros, and Nickerson, Bobby Raiston and Jerry Sullivan. Herrmann drew houses of fair size last week, and gave an entertainment which was thorou patrons. Next week brings Rose Meiville, in "Sis Hopkins."

KEITH'S THEATAR (B. F. Keith, manager)—Last week's vaudeville was a varied and enjoyable entertainment, and drew out capacity business. Bill for this week includes Three Joscarys, Ernest Hogan, Sidney Grant, Will C. Matthews and Nelle Harris, Bachelor Club, Flo Irwin and Walter Hawley, Rowe and Doyle, Reed and Shaw, Mile, Elseeta, Newell and Niblo, the Gagnoux, and Mr. and Mrs. Browning.

HiJOU OPERA HOUSE (Murray & Gilbert, managers).—For this week, which is the final one of the season at this house, the stock company offers alternate performances of "Iolanthe" and "Patience." Musical lovers were afforded a great treat last week, in "Faust" and "Martha," and crowded houses rewarded the efforts of the singers. A testimonial will be tendered Clara Lane 21. The stock company will go from here to Brooklyn, thence to Denver and Kansas City, and arrangements have aiready been perfected for another season of this in the Fall.

MUSIC HALL (J. H. Emery, manager).

Great care has been taken by the management in the way of stage settings and costumes. New Palace Theater (Chas. H. Waldron, manager).—The size of the audiences present last week show without a doubt that the stock burlesque company is a big success. The burlesques are well staged, and no money seems to have been spared in the selection of the company. "The Soubrettes' Club' and "The New Judge" are the skits for current week. Olio: Coutour Brothers, Crimmins and Magee, Pierce and Egbert, the Wilsons, Monson and Smith, and the Holden Family.

SEASON OF 1902, A LEADING FEATURE OF THE THE

THE BIGGEST. BEST AND MOST ARTISTIC AERIAL ACT EVER PRESENTED TO THE PUBLIC.

More Performers Employed than in any Two Other Aerial Acts Extant. More Money Invested in Wardrobe and Apparatus than in any Six Aerial Acts Ever Conceived.

EVERY MEMBER OF THE TROUPE IS EXPERT. There Are No Dummies.

The Troupe Commands and Receives More Salary Than Was Ever Before Dreamed of for an Aerial Act.

Headed by Harry Potter, the Troupe includes the pick of aerial experts of Europe and America, every one of whom is a star performer.

The NEW YORK CLIPPER of April 12, 1902, says:

"The best aerial act ever seen in this structure was the one presented (for the first time in public) by the ten peerless Potters (headed by Harry Potter). All of the troupe are experts in their line, and the double casting work, which to the layman would seem impossible because it is confusing, was accomplished with such neatness and despatch that it was done before you knew it. Single, double and twisting somersaults were performed with as much ease as the average being would walk up a short flight of steps. They worked like clock work and seemed more like machines than human beings, so regular were their movements. Mr. Potter has eclipsed all the aerial bar acts which have preceded his, and it is doubtful if his act will ever be eclipsed."

Address All Communications to HARRY POTTER, as per route.
